Our depiction of the Earth is in the manner implied by the ancient Kemetians (so-called Egyptians). The life-giving waters flowed down from inner-Africa, where too the founders of Kemetian civilization and humanity itself originated. If you look carefully, you may also see that the region including Haiti is highlighted. The Haitians restored the original name to the land as they became the first people in world history to overcome enslavement through their own spirituality, their own planning, and their own actions.
